

The Chesapeake PC Users Group

The Chesapeake PC Users Group (ChPCUG) is a 501(c) 3 charitable organization that has been active in Maryland since 1984.

PC Computer users are assisted through education classes, monthly user meetings, a newsletter, an on-line forum, and the opportunity to participate in Special Interest Groups. ChPCUG collaborates with all organizations and government agencies interested in advancing computer knowledge for members of the local community.

One of the most important functions of ChPCUG is Computer Refurbishing. It began in February 1999 with the purpose of refurbishing computers for those individuals, families, schools, and nonprofit organizations unable to afford a new computer. Grants allow provision of computers at no cost to those unable to make a donation. A modest donation is requested from those able to provide it. Volunteers perform all refurbishing activities.

The activities of the ChPCUG are to promote computer literacy, challenge the digital divide, and enable recipients to have access to the vast storehouse of information available on the Internet.

As of September 2007, the Chesapeake PC Users Group has now provided over 1500 computers to those in need. Since 2004, over 350 computer systems have been provided to elementary school students at no cost.
